He has lasted for years while others nearly as good have en the count and have drifted back into other professions.

Gans, like Fitzsimmons, McGovern, and a very few others, has risen from one championship to another. His first orld's title was the lightweight, which gained by beating Frank Erne at Fort Erie. Even in that fight Gans was savy, and later in the game he put on im to do 133 ringside and keep his He tried to make the weight Britt, succeeded, but looked like a ton when he stripped under the lights. ANS is a true welter-weight. His fight with Mike (Twin) Sullivan Friday night gave him the welterweight title, for Walcott, with a disabled hand, is out of the championsh'n running for all time. Walcott may take on some three-round bouts with secondraters, but he will never be able again to fight in his old giant-killing style. Sullivan was white welter-weight chamon (I suppose he still is, for that mat-er, but there's small satisfaction in it fiter losing to the Eultimore man), and is defeat cleared Gans's path of all baseles in the welter-weight class. His list of knockouts is longest claimed by any fighter. In fact he has won fully half of his battles with one well-directed punch. He is the anest knocker-out in the business. Gans has no money, in spite of his long career. He is more of a fighter a business man. His purses have made managers rich, while, to use his vn expression, Joe is usually "down

Winning the welter-weight title may start him on the path to fame and ortune again. He has proved that he can whip Sullivan, and it will be hard find another man in the welterweight class who can give him a rub for the title. The fierce pace that he maintained all through the fifteen rounds fought shows that he is still in limit, although he has graduated from the lightweight class.

Gans is probably the cleverest of all fighters now in the profession. He is not so fancy as Jack O'Brien, but he ich more dangerous. He never rastes a movement. He has a wonderful knack of hitting a sudden, short tinside punch, catching the other man coxing in and delivering a knockout with one blow. Gans seldom has to knock a fighter down more than once. Sullivan, by coming back from the hook down in the eighth round and aghting seven more at a hot pace, showed remarkable fighting stamina.

The Berk Mark's's claiming of the Graeco - Roman championship has raised a roar among wresting cranks. One gentleman writes as follows: "Paul Pons never was the champion of all champions. Hackenschmidt beat him easily twice. Even if Marks beat Pons it would count for little."

Another adds: "Your 'Constant Reader' in his excitement overlooks a few facts. Hackenschmidt is usually regarded as world's champion, having beaten Pons twice, once in Russia and once at the Yoles Bergere in 1899. Since then he won the world's championship in 1901 at the Casino de Paris. Pons was in paris at the time, but did not compete. He preferred taking a lay-off to rest. Intil Hack went away again. The prises Pons won at the Folies Bergere were the "ceinture d' or (or goiden beit) given as a special prize by Mr. Dubonnet—not a world's championship in 1903. Where does Pons come in?

TWO GOOD FIGHTS

Yanger Meets Goodman at Boston and Attell Boxes Maynard at Portland

Two good out-of-town battles are carded to be fought to-night in New England. One of them will take place at the Douglas A. C., of Chelsea, Mass. while the other will come off at Portland, Me. At the Douglas club the principals in the star bout will be "Kid" Goodman, the Boston fighter, and Benny Yanger, the rugged Chicago light lightweight. They will clash in a fifteen-round bout at 128 pounds, weigh in at 3 P. M. Goodman recently fought Dave Deehler and lost the decision on a foul. He has been training hard for this fight and expects to beat Yanger.

The battle will doubtless be a hard-fought one, as both men are aggressive and good punchers.

The fighters who will meet in the bout at Portland will be Abe Attell and Billy Maynard, the local feather-weight. They are billed to box fifteen rounds. Attell ought to have no trouble in besting Maynard, as he is too clever for him, and besides too much of a ring general, land, Me. At the Douglas club the
